CUNARD LINE'S OLD HISTORY

Original Deeds
Discovered

Sir Percy Bates, Chairman of the Cunard-White Star Company, in a letter to the Press reveals that the original vellum deeds of the formation of Cunard Steam Ship Company recently came into the possession of the company.

The deeds were by a chance circumstance discovered in archives, where they had lain long-forgotten since deposited for safe custody in 1839-40.

In tracing the development of the company, Sir Percy refers to the hope of immortality "in business as well as in individuals," and states that it is easy to see this throughout Cunard history.

He writes: "These men (the original partners) meant to survive, if not in their bodies, at least in their idea. They wanted to do the best that could be done across the Atlantic, Transatlantic service was their aim."

After mentioning the recent merger of the Cunard and White Star Companies, Sir Percy states: "Each generation seeks its own means to procure continuity. The important thing is that in successive generations there should exist the determination to perpetuate Cunard's idea."

WOMEN EXAMINERS FOR LICENCE TESTS

Fair Sex To Test Each Others' Driving Ability

The organization which, Mr. Hore-Belisha, the Minister of Transport, is setting up for the purpose of conducting driving tests, which will become obligatory early this year, is to include women testers. It is understood that their duty will be to test women applicants for motor licences.

The Minister announced that:—The number of appointments will be in the neighbourhood of 200, with salaries for men of £217 to £256 per annum, with an additional £15 in London.

There will be a small number of supervising posts, including one at £200 to £260, subject to a slight temporary abatement.

The appointments, which will include some women, will be full-time and non-pensionable.

The 15,000 applications already received for these appointments will be considered, but applications received after December 19 are not entertained.

Rush of Applicants
An examining board has been set up at the Ministry of Transport to consider the qualifications of applicants.

Already several thousand women have applied. A Ministry official said they included typists and private-car chauffeurs, and a number had high educational qualifications.

When asked what salary would be paid to successful women applicants, the official said: "Although the salary has not been fixed, it is likely to be slightly less than that offered to men examiners."

An official of the Automobile Association welcomed the project to recruit women examiners.

"There is no reason," he said, "why women should not carry out driving tests. The time has arrived when women who specialize in automobile engineering are as well qualified as men to make such tests. Women have a considerable aptitude in automobile engineering."

The tests will be to all motorists who have taken out a driving licence since April 1, of last year and for those who are seeking one for the first time. It is expected that they will begin in April this year. What form they will take has not been announced, but it is likely that they will include an examination in knowledge of the Highway Code, the ability to start the engine, move away straight ahead or at an angle, overtake, meet, or cross the path of another vehicle, stop the vehicle in an emergency, drive the car backwards into a limited opening, and show a knowledge of road signals and the ability to act promptly when they are given.

EUROPE-ASIA AIRWAY

Berlin To Shanghai In 53 Hours

Nanking, Jan. 14.

A plan of the Eurasia Aviation Corporation for the institution of an Europe-Asia Inter-Continental Airway between Berlin and Shanghai has been approved by the Ministry of Communications, according to Mr. Li Ching-sung, Managing-Director of the Aviation Corporation, who is now on a visit to the Capital.

When the German Government

NEW ROAD SAFETY

Pavement Fences Now Planned

A new road safety experiment, the erection of fences at the pavement edge, may shortly be made on a small scale in London.

The London and Home Counties Traffic Advisory Committee is considering the recommendation of the plan to the Minister of Transport, Mr. Hore-Belisha.

The pavement railings would probably be first tried at one of the traffic circles, and in a busy street without shops, where there is not much unloading of vehicles.

Gaps in the railings would coincide with the foot crossing-places.

To reduce accidents on the Great West Road at Brentford, Lord Trenchard, the Commissioner of the Metropolitan Police, has suggested a division of the up and down traffic by a raised strip of grass, about four feet wide, with gaps every 50 yards or so.

approves the proposal, a test flight will be made next month, he said. An airplane will start from Berlin and take the route over Greece and India to Shanghai. It is estimated that the entire journey, covering a distance of over 14,000 kilometers, will be done in 53 hours. If the test flight proves satisfactory, air service will be started in March, Mr. Li added.

It may be recalled that the Eurasia Aviation Corporation had originally intended to operate a Nanking-Berlin air service by way of Sinkiang and Russia; but the scheme had to be abandoned owing to various complications.—Kuo Min.

MOTOR JOTTINGS

LONDON CAR PARKING

Problem Solved

In opening the new Cumberland garage and car park in Baywater Street, W.1, Mr. Hore-Belisha, the Minister of Transport, according to "Engineering" emphasized the great traffic congestion arising from the presence of stationary vehicles on the roads.

In a striking phrase, he stated that a street is the most expensive garage in the world, mentioning that the capital value of the land surface occupied by a single stationary private car of average size in a busy street in London was £20,000. The new garage, which contains five parking floors, was designed by Sir Owen Williams, and is of particular interest as embodying a number of entirely new features.

It is built throughout in reinforced concrete, each floor being designed to take its full load without supporting stanchions or pillars. Access to each floor is given by ramps, and a special feature is that separate ramps are provided at the two sides for entrance and exit, the two ramps in effect constituting independent spirals, circulating through each of the floors. To ensure an easy gradient, the second half of each parking stage is half a floor higher than the first. Another special feature of the garage is that both the ramps and parking accommodation are arranged to give an anti-clockwise circulation of traffic. This is the reverse of the usual principle, but it is stated that, before the design of the building was decided upon, careful and exhaustive experiments were carried out which established the fact that the average driver possesses better control of his vehicle when he is turning to the left rather than to the right.

Lates, Devices Employed

The ramps have sufficient headroom to allow any car to pass, but in the event of a car being loaded with luggage to an excessive height, protection is afforded on the invisible ray system. If the ray is interrupted, two red discs light up, a "stop" notice is illuminated, and a gong is rung. To assist an owner in identifying the floor on which his car is parked, each floor has its ceiling striped with a distinctive colour, the owner's ticket being striped to correspond. The cars are parked in slight echelon and with the radiator facing the wall, so that they can be run into place directly. To take a car out, it is only necessary to back a short distance, and at once drive forward to the exit, the manoeuvring space being always kept clear.

Ground Floor Amenities

The ground floor is devoted to repairing and servicing, and also contains dressing and bath rooms for customers, a lounge, chauffeurs' rest room and changing rooms, accommodation for the staff, and a luggage depository. Passenger-operated lifts are provided to all floors. There is a filing station on the front at street level, and on leaving, a driver can either go straight into the street or enter the station without going into the roadway. All floors are kept at a safe temperature by an air-heating system, and are equipped with water connections for filling up radiators, and a compressed-air supply for inflating tyres. Water is delivered at 353 lb. per square inch on the ground floor for washing, and a quick-drying plant is also installed. The repair plant is very complete and includes a brake-testing machine and tyre re-grooving plant.

CHARCOAL GAS INSTEAD OF GASOLINE

Nanking, Jan. 14.

Long-distance omnibus companies operating in the provinces have been ordered by the Ministry of Industry to install, as far as possible, charcoal gas producers in their motor-cars and to substitute charcoal for gasoline. Experiments show that the charcoal invention is not only efficient but economical.

AN ANTI-DAZZLE NO STAGNATION LAMP IN CAR DESIGN

Another inventor, Mr. Thomas Crawford, Jr., of Glasgow, has been turning his attention to the dazzle problem, and he has evolved two head lamp attachments known as the Amplyte and Curt-slyte writes a correspondent. These consist of a series of "baffle cones, each forming part of a parabola, placed in the stream of light so that the reflector is occluded from direct view. A cut-out quadrant, the back of which forms a reflector, is also fitted to cut out useless rays and reflect them back on to the main parabola. The Amplyte lamp has four baffle cones, which are fixed, and Mr. Crawford estimates that there is a loss of only an eighth of the driving light. The Curt-slyte is of similar construction, but the cones are divided so that the two lower segments can be rotated in an upward direction into the upper part of the lamp, leaving the lower half of the reflector in its original form to throw out a powerful beam on the top of which is superimposed a soft floodlight from the cones.

Unfortunately, there was no opportunity to try these lamps out on the road, but the inventor has them in use and finds that he has quite a good driving light, and the drivers of approaching vehicles invariably dim on approaching him.

when the red was going to change and could be ready to move off, instead of losing time as is now too often the case. On many occasions the driver in front of me has been so slow in responding to the green that his has been the only car to cross before the lights have changed again.

This improved robot deserves trying out in traffic conditions; I believe it would prove very successful.

Occasionally the idea gets abroad that motor car design is stagnating. If those who have it came into contact with a fraction of the interesting technical developments that are each week brought to the notice of various technical departments they would realise that so far, at any rate, there is no stagnation, and no sign of it.

We are, however, a naturally conservative race, and motor manufacturers generally are more conservative than most. This is only natural for they have to study the tastes of their conservative clients, and it would be quite possible for a car of unorthodox design to be a pronounced success from the technical point of view, and at the same time, in theatrical parlance, an utter flop from the commercial aspect.

Most motorists are now familiar with the method of operating the Wilson self-changing gear box, for even if they do not own a car so fitted they probably have a friend with such a car. To change gear one moves the small lever carried on the steering column, in order to preselect the desired gear and the actual change is made separately by depressing and releasing the gear-change pedal. Until the pedal is depressed and released, however, there is no actual response to the movement of the preselector lever. When the pedal is actuated then the actual change of gear will follow without noise or shock. In the Wilson gear box epicyclic gears are used.

This action is given exactly by a gear box of ordinary design which was tried out recently by means of an ingenious control mechanism. This is moreover, not complicated, and the box with its control should be very little, if any, more expensive than say, a four-speed box having synchromesh action on all forward gears. At the moment no further details can be given, but it may be said that the box is a British production, and that it is hoped to describe it shortly.

HEADLIGHT DAZZLE Possibility Of Regulations

The Minister of Transport, it is understood, is considering the issue of regulations on the subject of headlights. Their necessity has been discussed before, but the general opinion was that the need for action was growing less, while the framing of satisfactory restrictions presented many difficulties. Under these circumstances it is a little hard to understand why action should be necessary now. Headlight dazzle is often given as an excuse after an accident, but it is seldom an acceptable one. Many who do complain do so because they are more easily dazzled than the average driver. It is quite certain that some drivers are more sensitive than others, but it is not usual to legislate for the exception, and these drivers should take their own precautions as regards the use of anti-dazzle screens or visors.

There are now few cars unfitted with some form of anti-dazzle device, and it would be a mistake to limit legislation by prohibiting all but one, or perhaps two. The dip and switch arrangement is the most used and is extremely satisfactory, but most drivers would agree that merely to switch off the off-side light is not enough; nor is the switching off of the near side light, with the off-side beam trained to the left. Various dimming systems are quite satisfactory and would have to be recognised, so that any regulations would seem obliged to take note of at least three anti-dazzle systems, lay down some standard of efficiency, and enforce proper use. The first is possible, the second difficult, and the third almost impossible. The probable result would be yet more regulations, well-intentioned, desirable in theory, but impracticable and annoying.

Insurance Developments

The insurance companies have been a little surprised at the reception accorded their proposed 20 per cent. increase in Glasgow and other areas. In the first place, the worst possible moment was chosen for the announcement—during the Scottish Show—and there was resentment among both motorists and motor traders. This resentment has not been lessened by the fact that the increased premium takes effect on the same day as the horse-power tax reduction.

No real attempt has been made to convince motorists that the increase was necessary, and there are too many anomalies in motor insurance that there is considerable scepticism as to its basis. A lack of tact is also apparent in imposing so considerable an increase on a large section without any attempt to provide some concession.

An all-round increase, together with a bonus which continued to increase up to 50 per cent., and a greater inducement to motorists to assume responsibility for the first £5 or £10 of any claim would have been well received, and would have provided more revenue while meeting the demands of the good risk.

An example of the kind of development which may be expected is the scheme of a Glasgow firm of brokers to cater for the careful driver. They are aware of the growing feeling among experienced and careful drivers that they are responsible for what profits the companies do make on motor insurance, and that they are already bearing too much of the burden of their more reckless brethren. The scheme is to form a "Careful Drivers of Glasgow Group," confined to those who have driven for many years without serious accident. The scheme will be guaranteed by a well-known syndicate of underwriters, and the group will be treated as a separate unit, obtaining rates commensurate with the quality of the risk.

A no-claim bonus rising annually to a very high percentage of the premium, is also a feature, and no doubt much interest will be taken in the scheme when details are issued, probably at the end of this week. It appears probable that drivers with good records will be catered for by a number of such schemes, and if these assume important dimensions motor insurance will have to receive a real overhaul. At present the companies are not even fair to themselves.

Driving Tests

The final decision as to the nature of the new driving tests has yet to be made, but the Ministry of Transport has invited applications for the post of examiners. A first batch of 300 at an annual salary of £250 to £300 is to be appointed. This means an outlay of £75,000 to £90,000 a year. How far the proposed fee of 7s 6d will meet this, and also the various office and administrative expenses, remains to be seen, but even if there is no serious call on the Road Fund it must be remembered that these salaries will be found by the motoring community.

If these tests do result in the elimination of unsafe drivers, nobody will object to the price paid, but there is no certainty that they will do so. It is a pity that provision cannot be made for experimenting in such directions without saddling the community with a costly and irksome system in the event of failure. Even the malignant motorist is willing to go a long way in co-operating with authority to give a fair trial to anything which promises a possibility of results. Unfortunately the result so far is an ever-growing burden of regulations and restrictions, irrespective of success or failure. Meanwhile it will be interesting to know who is to examine the examiners.

Skid Correction

In a recently published booklet of driving hints the advice in the event of a skid is that the driver should look and point his front wheels in the direction he wishes to go. This is not the usual advice, which is to steer into the skid, but the author's reason is that the tendency to over-correct a skid may make matters worse. Attention was drawn to this fact in this column long ago, and it was even suggested that the lady who took her hands off the wheel when her car skidded may not have been so very wrong after all.

Many skids are made worse by over-correction, and over-correction is invited by many modern steering systems owing to their lightness, low gearing, and lack of direction. With a steering which tends to straighten itself there is far less likelihood of over-correction, and it is possible to point the wheels more or less in the right direction. Modern cars, on the whole, are not as prone to skidding as the earlier makes, but many of them, when they do skid, are far less controllable, and for this the steering is mostly to blame.

Rear Overhang

A walk round Blythwood Square provides an interesting study in rear overhang. With the rear wheels against the kerb, the tail of some cars obstructs half the pavement. This is not only objectionable from the pedestrian's point of view, but it means that the driver has to pay great attention to possible obstructions in the way of posts and high kerbs, etc. Sooner or later the question will arise whether parked cars should be allowed to trespass on the footpath as well as occupy the public highway. Cars with excessive overhang should not be parked with rear wheels against the kerb. Excessive overhang is not only ugly but also, unscientific, and it is sometimes difficult to understand the objection to lengthening the wheelbase. There are a number of models to-day of which the bodies have an overgrown appearance. The overhang, not only at both ends but also at the sides, suggests what is often the fact—that the body has outgrown the chassis, and the entire car requires re-planning.

Divided Roads

The Great West Road out of London has gained an unsavory notoriety because of numerous accidents, and its division into one-way sections by means of a central strip of grass is being considered. Where a road is really of adequate width such a separation of opposite-bound traffic should be a matter of course. Local drivers know how safe the Temple-Carmichael road and the divided portion of the boulevard beyond Annisland are, owing to the central strip. The Glasgow to Edinburgh road would have proved safer had it been wide enough throughout such a provision has been definitely proved that a road can be too wide for safety, just as a road junction can be opened up too much, drivers being inclined to wander over the centre line, drive

THE "SIMPLE PICNIC"

The Wyre Forest

"Choose such pleasures as re-create much and cost little. These wise words of Thomas Fuller in the seventeenth century apply to us to-day even more than they did to the simple-minded people of that time when many spent their lives within walking distance of their homes in the hope and believe—placid contentment, but—and the difference is very great—we are more difficult to amuse.

Cars are no longer luxuries; they are in most cases necessities. To those who possess them "simple picnic" is suggested. By the simple picnic that which can be arranged in a few minutes is meant, and not the grand, highly organised affair which entails much preparation and wearying forethought. It is as enjoyable on mild winter days as it is in summer. By dwellers in Birmingham and workers in the Black Country what more charming locality could be chosen for the purpose than the Wyre Forest? This is but twenty miles from the city and merely ten from Cradley. The motorist should make his way to lovely Bewdley in the valley of the Severn, then leave the line of traffic and turn into the heart of the forest.

It is possible to drive the car along the track for about two miles, until one comes upon a lonely farmhouse most picturesquely situated on the hillside. The view from there is superb. In the foreground lies a lake with graceful trees casting shadows upon it from the banks, beyond and in the valley the winding Severn flows swiftly and musically, on the farther side of the river the forest rises to a height of about seven hundred feet. In an open glade the clear shallow water laps in tiny waves on a pebbly beach. Sheep find their way to this quiet spot, and forest deer and other shy wild creatures come from their hiding places to drink.

An enthusiastic lover of this forest says that she spends hours tramping by herself through its denseness to learn the life and habits of the birds and beasts that dwell therein. She will climb the steep, wooded hillside above the river and rest by the king of the forest, a giant oak with thirty branches themselves like great trunks. Even in winter she will spend much time engrossed in the delightful study of nature, for, quoted she, "Nature gives, to every time and season some beauty of its own."

A simple picnic in the Wyre Forest would be time well spent no matter what the season. After all, why should such sweet seclusion, such restful quietness, be for birds and beasts and fairyfolk alone?

Remember that all this beauty is but ten miles from the Black Country.

RUNNING-IN

A very interesting treatise on the running-in of internal combustion engines has been published by E. G. Acheson, Ltd., the producers of Acheson colloidal graphite. This treatise deals with the advantages to be obtained by employing colloidal graphite, but it goes very thoroughly into the whole matter of lubrication. Did you realise, for example, that the temperature of the oil in a bearing is actually higher than that of the bearing itself? Measurements have shown that the oil film may be 7° degrees (F) hotter than the bearing. The reason is that the oil film is the seat of the friction although without the oil film the friction would be much more of course.

Experiments made on bearings lubricated (a) by oil and (b) by oil plus colloidal graphite are quoted. In case (a) the oil supply was cut off and in ten minutes the oil film broke down, and seizure would have resulted had the experiment been continued. In case (b) the bearing continued to run after the oil was cut off, without increase of friction, for seven hours, when the test was finished for the day. Next day the test was continued for 24 hours, and on the third and fourth days for eight hours each, a total of 24 hours.

In seclusion, and do everything but keep into their own side.

WRESTING THE SECRETS OF THE HEAVENS

20 Tons Of Molten Glass To Make A Mirror!

Up at Corning, New York, what has been well described as the most valuable piece of glass in the world is gradually cooking in the hope that, a few years from now, man with its aid may peer millions of light years further into the heavens than he has heretofore been able to see.

It probably is hardly proper to describe as a "piece of glass" the new 200-inch mirror, weighing twenty tons, which for the next ten months must slowly anneal at gradually reducing temperatures and thereafter be carefully polished for many months more. Its intrinsic as well as potential scientific value is tremendous. By the time it reaches its ultimate destination in the observatory to be erected at Mount Palomar in California, it is estimated it will represent an investment of six million dollars ($1,500,000).

It is too early yet to say with certainty that this mirror will survive to accomplish the many scientific marvels expected of it, but its successful casting (on December 3) was a sufficiently brilliant achievement to be worth churning in more detail than was possible in telegraphed messages.

The successful pouring was, as reported at the time, in large part due to the experience of casting another 200-inch reflector on March 25.

In that attempt the cores at the bottom of the mould, which are so geometrically spaced and shaped as to strengthen the mirror and reduce its weight, were held in place by steel rods. Some of these broke and the cores, of less specific gravity than the molten glass, floated to the surface.

A Failure

For two months these cores floated on top of the mirror, which was allowed to cool much more rapidly than would have been the case had the casting been entirely successful.

At the end of May, when the glass had cooled enough to be worked with, they were removed by sand blasting, but around where they had rested were small ripples. Two months later these were removed by reheating the surface to a temperature of 2,400 deg. F., but before then it had been decided to take no further chances of ultimate success for this reflector, but to begin anew.

Behind the spectacular performances at Corning in March and this month lies five years of study by Dr. G. V. McCauley and Dr. J. C. Hostetter, of the research staff of the Corning Glass Works, aided by other scientists from the California Institute of Technology, which will ultimately possess the reflector, and the Carnegie Institution.

They carried their studies to a point where they were convinced that they had removed all limits of size in the casting of telescopic mirrors before the first disc was poured.

Beyond the fact that both the first and second mirrors are of borosilicate glass, containing largely sand, borax, and alkali, their formulae, the two mirrors are not of identical composition—is a professional secret. But nothing was kept secret about the more prosaic but infinitely more colourful work of "cooking the soup," preparing the glass for pouring, and the actual casting.

Both the scientists were invited to be present and the general public, through Press representatives, saw the actual casting and learned of the long preparations for it.

More than a month was required for preparing the "soup," as the workmen called their molten glass. Ten days alone were needed to raise the furnace to the required heat.

Making The "Soup"

Then, day and night for twenty-one days the raw materials were fed into the hungry maw at the rate of 400 pounds each hour. Constantly a battery of blast torches played on the huge cauldron as the tide of white-hot "soup" gradually climbed up its sides. Finally, on the day the pouring took place, the furnace contained one hundred tons of molten glass, from which skilled workmen in casting the mirror drew the finest thirty tons, of which, in turn, the purest twenty tons went into the mould.

Near the furnace, the mould had been constructed. With its cores in place, it appeared, as viewed through the openings into which the glass was poured, not unlike a village of igloos.

A skilled crew of five had been carefully drilled in the work of lading the glass from the furnace, four hundred pounds at a time, pouring the choicest of it into the mould and returning the rest to the furnace.

With the experience gained in the first casting, they completed the pouring of the second disc in little more than half the time required in March.

Sheathed in asbestos and masks against the intense heat, these workmen seemed hardly human as they went at their task with almost mechanical perfection.

Asbestos Clothing

As each ladle was removed from the furnace, the glass around its edges turned greenish-blue at contact with the comparatively cold air. One workman quickly trimmed this away with a long iron hook, while another, with a portable water tank and perforated rips, placed the ring round the edge to send a sheet of sizzling steam down the outside of the ladle. This was designed to make the glass congeal quickly on the sides of the ladle to prevent any flaking in the intense heat to which the container was being subjected.

Carried by overhead trolleys to the doors of the mould, the glass was poured down upon the 120 cores to submerge them gradually as a stream of lava might bury some primitive village.

Masked like the workmen, the scientists in charge watched this most critical stage of the operation carefully, as for virtually six hours the pouring steadily progressed.

The terrific physical strain on the crew, as well as the mental strain on the scientists in charge, is made more striking by the fact that in all the ladle had to be dipped 104 times, or an average of once in each 34 minutes for that six hours, into the cauldron whose contents were of 2,500 deg. F.

Upon the completion of the task of pouring, the mould was brought to a temperature of 2,400 degrees. That will be depressed a few degrees at a time at first and then more rapidly until some ten months hence the annealing is completed.

THE DUKE OF KENT'S HOROSCOPE

A famous London astrologer has drawn up the Duke and Duchess of Kent's horoscope. He says that both are Sagittarians, and adds that "there are none like Sagittarians" for "getting on with and understanding one another." Both have the same "switch-changing" gale of spirits and "metamorphic" character, the same sense of humour and punning, and are much given to practical joking. "Sagittarians" can make allowances and are uncomplaining yet they are very fastidious and have high aims.

TO-MORROW THE HISTORICAL FILM OF WAR "THE STORMTROOP OF 1917"

JOURNAL OF A CRIME

Showing To-morrow At The Alhambra

Although theatre public is led to expect nothing but the best in the way of film entertainment from Ruth Chatterton, yet never has she given such a demonstration of sheer power in the portrayal of scenes of tremendous emotion as she does in "Journal of a Crime," the first National picture which comes to the Alhambra to-morrow. In the role of a highly sensitive woman of fine breeding who is goaded into committing murder to keep a ruthless love pirate from wrecking her home, she gives a character portrayal that is masterly, superior even to her work in "Frisco Jenny" or "Madame X."

Her interpretation of the warped and tortured spirit of a woman suffering not only from the commission of the act of murder, but the hatred and the scorn of the husband she loves more than life, together with the crushing realization that another is accused of the crime, that the dramatic genius of Bernhard, but Miss Chatterton rises to the situation with a dramatic exhibition that is astounding even for the first lady of the screen.

She proves conclusively that she has a keen insight into character under any emotional stress and the talent to move the public with her own depth of feeling. As an actress she is superb.

No better actor could have been chosen to play opposite Miss Chatterton than the cool, suave man-of-the-world, Adolphe Menjou, who gives a virile and convincing performance as the playwright husband whose infatuation for the beautiful and popular star of his musical production, brings about the tragedy.

CARTER THE GREAT

Coming To-morrow To The King's

"Radio hallucination" is a new malady which has made its appearance in England and is puzzling doctors. There has been at least a dozen cases in the last six months. Sufferers from it imagine they are human receiving sets and are able to receive radio messages through their ears and mouths.

A notable case occurred in Birmingham, where a man complained that he could not sleep because he says he is constantly getting messages from the ether. At times he complains of pain in the ears as though someone were running a red-hot needle through the drum. When the pain subsides he hears buzzing like the Morse code.

Apart from this hallucination he is perfectly normal and alienists who have examined him declare his mind is absolutely sound. A variation of this malady is the claim of other sufferers that their sensitiveness is so keen they can hear the throbbing of orchestras and the sound of strange far away voices.

One patient claimed a few nights ago that he could distinctly hear Madrid.

CARTER THE GREAT

A sailor who believed he could pick up wireless messages said he believed a certain amount of metal in his teeth was responsible. When the metal was removed the hallucination ceased. Evelyn Maxwell, the noted Psychic Phenomenon appearing with Carter the Great, who with his company will appear at King's Theatre for seven nights commencing Wednesday, 23rd January claims to receive her telepathic and apparent clairvoyant messages in much the same manner, except that she uses silk about her as a conductor.

She maintains that it required many years to determine the agency of easy reception of thought and the conscious intelligible registration of mental pictures which constitute the development of her extraordinary powers of divination.

Miss Maxwell has been blessed with a beautiful complement of teeth which have no metal in or about them; neither does she claim supernatural or preternatural aid; yet, she calmly sits blindfolded nightly on a brilliantly lighted stage and calls out your name, your business, sets the day of your marriage or the number of children, if any, with which your union will be blessed; she foretells in rapid sequence events that have happened, or will happen in your life, mentions victorious race horses and has been known to foretell accurately the winners of important races, notably The Grand National, which was won by Glenside, and upon which a Mr. Ready, M.P. bet and won a stupendous sum. On Miss Maxwell's prediction, she foresaw and prophesied the Great War and in many other ways demonstrated that she possesses a most uncanny power quite beyond the ken of the ordinary mortal.

cuous roles are well handled by Henry O'Neil, Phillip Reed, Henry Kolker and others.

While something of a psychological study, the picture is not without plenty of fast action such as the actual killing which takes place while the woman is slinging in a rehearsal, and the chase and capture of a criminal in the heels of the theatre.

As much of the action takes place in the theatre, an insight into backstage life in a Paris musical revue house is given, with other scenes in the gay cafe and night clubs, along the French Riviera and behind the crime walls of the noted Santa Prison.

WAKE UP AND DREAM

Coming To The Queen's

Take our word for it, you won't see a funnier, more entertaining picture this season than "Wake Up And Dream" the Universal comedy with music starting on Thursday at the Queen's.

Russ Columbo shares featured roles with Roger Pryor, for years one of the outstanding performers of the New York stage, and June Knight, the sprightliest warbler who ever graced a Ziegfeld show. Columbo is heard in "Too Beautiful For Words," and several other numbers of the type that made him famous, and the fast-talking Pryor is a perennial "fixer" whose schemes always seem to go wrong. The two men with Miss Knight, comprise a small-time vaudeville trio stranded in Atlantic City, who finally gravitate to Hollywood, and their adventures form a swift succession of hilarious situations. Henry Armetta, Catharine Doucet, Richard Carle, Andy Devine, Wini Shaw and other favourites are in the supporting roles.

Prepare for a treat in "Wake Up and Dream." This is entertainment at its highest and there is real enjoyment from start to finish.

The Wise Woman

Jones—"My wife says that if I were to die she would remain a widow."

Brown—"Evidently she thinks there's not another man in the world like you."

Jones—"On the contrary, she's afraid there may be, and that she'd get him."

WHOM THE GODS DESTROY

Showing At The Queen's

Walter Lang, the Columbia director who recently has devoted his talents almost exclusively to comedy, shows rare versatility in the direction of "Whom The Gods Destroy," the picture having its initial showings to-day at the Queen's Theatre. Lang goes from the comedy of such a picture as "Warrior's Husband" to the powerful drama of "Whom the Gods Destroy" and does a thoroughly convincing job.

The cast of this Columbia production include Walter Connolly, Robert Young and Doris Kenyon in leading roles. Those in the supporting cast include Mary Carr, Jack Mulhall, Gilbert Emery, Henry Kolker, Geneva Mitchell and others.

Walter Connolly is portrayed as the aged, broken stage producer, believed to have died in a shipwreck, who returns as a stranger to develop and manifest in his son the spark of genius that was his heritage. It is a role of immense dramatic proportions in which Connolly finally achieves belated recognition as a star in his own right.

The story of "Whom the Gods Destroy" was written by Albert Payson Terhune.

The Wrong End

"Couldn't you manage one more éclair, Tommy?" invited the hostess.

"No, thank you," was the reply from the small boy. "I'm afraid I'm full up."

DR. MONICA

Coming To The Alhambra

"Dr. Monica" a story in which both wife and the "other woman" try to sacrifice themselves to insure the happiness of the other. In which Warner Bros. have cast three of the screen's outstanding stars, comes to the Alhambra Theatre on Saturday. Kay Francis has the title role, but although she portrays the part of a physician, there are no hospital scenes or medical sequences. The "other woman" is Jean Muir, and the husband beloved by both, is played by Warren William. Verree Teasdale, has another stellar role, and other important members of the cast include Phillip Reed, Emma Dunn, Herbert Bunston, Ann Shoemaker, Virginia Hammond, Hale Hamilton, and Virginia Pine.

The plot is taken from the famous Polish play, and comes to a dramatic and strange climax when the wife arranges to give up her husband when she finds he is the father of the other woman's child, but is thwarted by the girl, who ends her life in one of the most exciting scenes ever shown on the screen.

Dealing entirely with the social elect of New York, the picture is set in the background of beautiful Long Island estates and in luxurious apartments. William Keighley directed from the screen play by Charles Kenyon, which was dramatized from an English screen adaptation of the Polish play by Laura Walker Mayer.

"No, thanks," said Tommy, after deep thought. "That would make the space at the wrong end."

"Dating expose," "ruthless," "frank," "fearless" are a few of the words used by preview critics in describing Columbia's forceful political picture, "Washington Merry-Go-Round" now showing at the Star Theatre.

The story is a screen original by Maxwell Anderson, directed by James Cruze, and featuring Lee Tracy and Constance Cummings, and is said to throw a revealing spotlight on the invisible government that binds and gags lawmakers in Washington. Alan Dinehart has received no end of praise for his strong portrayal of a "difficult" "heavy" character. Walter Connolly, Frank Sheridan, Ernie Woods, Clay Clement and Arthur Vinton are others in the cast.

"OF HUMAN BONDAGE"

Current Film At The King's

One of the most powerful stories to come to the local screen in recent months is W. Somerset Maugham's "Of Human Bondage," the current attraction at the King's Theatre. The leading parts are taken by accomplished players like Leslie Howard and Bette Davis, while Alan Hale and the three Reginalds—Denny, Schmalz, and Owen—lend excellent support. Howard plays the part of a medical student who was victimized by the charms of a beautiful girl, and the story is a masterpiece of the human drama.

ROBBERY FROM ELDERLY WOMAN

At the Criminal Sessions yesterday before Mr. Justice Lindsell, Puisse Judge Yip Ka was charged with having robbed Ip Tse, an elderly woman, of $8 near Kowloon City on January 6.

Mr. J. H. Lockhart Smith, assistant Crown Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution and the following jury was empanelled:—Messrs. R. E. M. Devaux (foreman), Tsang Wing-si, Mahomed Farid, Wong Sik-chung, Mahomed Omar Hossain, Wan Hung-kwan, K. F. Rozario.

Evidence of the robbery was given by Ip Tse, who said that she was walking along the street when she was approached by the defendant and told to stop.

After a retirement of about 20 minutes, the foreman of the jury told his Lordship that they had not arrived at a unanimous verdict. Four of them found accused "Not Guilty" and three found him "Guilty."

His Lordship (to accused): The jury have found you not guilty by a bare majority. Lucky for you, the evidence was not entirely conclusive. You are discharged.

FORCED CHOP

Before Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday, Chan Sing-nam, 48, unemployed, was charged with the possession of a forged chop of the Hop Kee Import and Export firm; forging a bank draft for $2,000; and endeavouring to obtain the money from the Kwong Hing Bank on a forged bank draft.

Defendant said he was directed by his former employer Chiu Chi-wo to commit the acts. He wished to find this man.

The case was remanded for 48 hours.

PRAM THEFTS

For stealing three perambulators from various addresses, Li Wing Tak, 26, was sentenced to three months' hard labour by Mr. Hamilton at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

Lo Hang, 33, was charged on one count of receiving and was sentenced to two months' hard labour.

The complainants were Lieut. A. W. Lorena, 12 Hart Avenue, ground floor; Dr. J. H. McElroy, 12 Hart Avenue, first floor; and Mrs. G. Walton, 46 Carnarvon Road. The thefts were alleged to have taken place on January 6 and 18.

The second defendant stated that he had bought the perambulator from the first defendant for $2.

FALSE PRETENCES

On a charge of obtaining, by false pretences, 23 tins of lard, valued at $114, from the Wo Kee Shop, of Ki Chung Street, Ko Cheong, 21, an employee of the shop was sentenced to one month's hard labour and also ordered to pay $100 amends or, in default, two months' hard labour, by Mr. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday.

According to Detective-Sergeant Shepherd who prosecuted, the complainant, Ho Ki-wah, received a telephone message on December 3 supposed to have come from the Tai Loi pork stall, Western Market, ordering three tins of lard. The Tai Loi stall were customers of the Wo Kee shop. The defendant, who was employed in the Wo Kee shop as a delivery cooler, took the lard away. This was repeated on December 7, 8, 21, 22 and 23, four tins being delivered on each day, making a total of 23 tins. When the complainant submitted the monthly bill to the master of the stall, the latter refused to pay on noticing he had been charged for 23 tins which he had never ordered. The defendant received his wages of $8 on December 23, and absconded the following day.

The complainant made a report to the police on January 17, after the master of the stall had refused to pay. On January 19, the complainant noticed defendant in Sai Kung Road, Kowloon City, and had him arrested.

DOG SUMMONS

On a summons for allowing a dog to follow her into the Tai-shan market on December 20, Mrs. Keller, of No. 11 Mody Road, was fined $10 by Mr. Hamilton at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday.

It was stated by Sanitary Inspector C. Strange that on December 20 he visited the market and on the first floor he saw Mrs. Keller holding a small black and white dog on a leash. He told Mrs. Keller that he would have to summon her for allowing the dog to follow her into the market. He had previously warned her on December 24, and some time in September, about allowing the dog into the market.

Mrs. Keller told His Worship that on the day in question, the dog was not on a leash, and when Mr. Strange spoke to her, she was surprised and said "Oh! that dog again." She admitted that Inspector Strange had spoken to her about the dog, but before that she did not know that dogs were not allowed in the market. She added that the dog belonged to Miss Haines, who lived in the same house as she.

Miss S. Haines was called and she admitted owning the dog, which was a Japanese poodle. She stated that the dog usually followed the defendant about, and that she had heard Mrs. Keller mention that she had been in trouble about the dog following her into the market.

Tam Hin-fat unemployed, was fined $50, with the alternative of one month's hard labour, by Mr. W. Schofield, at Central Magistracy yesterday, on a charge of stealing a growing pine tree from Government plantation No. 7, below Pokfulam Road near No. 7 bridge. Mr. Twenlow, of the Botanical and Forestry Department, said the tree was about 15 to 20 years old, and was valued at $25. The defendant had cut it down.

A fine of $250, or, in default, three months' hard labour, was imposed upon Lau Fuk, aged 28, a shoemaker, by Mr. E. W. Hamilton at Kowloon Magistracy yesterday, for having possession of a still and distilling apparatus without a licence at 35, Prince Edward Road. Revenue Officer Humphreys stated that on Sunday he went to the house and found the still on the stairway for about a quarter of an hour. When the door was opened, he entered and found the defendant the only occupant of the flat. Near the door there were some distilling apparatus and in the kitchen there were six large barrels which had a strong smell of mash about them.

At the Criminal Sessions yesterday Wong Man-yiu was sentenced to three years' hard labour by Mr. Justice Lindsell for a breach of a deportation order. It was stated that accused was deported for ten years on December 15, 1933, and was arrested in the Colony on Christmas Day.

NATURAL DEATH

Inquest On Prisoner

Mr. Wynne-Jones at Central Magistracy yesterday conducted an inquest into the death of Chan Fuk, 45, an inmate of the Victoria Gaol. He was assisted by a jury comprised of Messrs. W. J. Roberts (foreman), Leung Shiu Po and C. de M. C. Y. H. H. H. H.

Mr. H. Barrett, chief warden of the Victoria Gaol, said that deceased was sentenced to three months' imprisonment with hard labour in default of paying a fine of $250 on November 21, 1934. On the day following his admission he was taken to the gaol hospital. He was discharged from the hospital on December 12, 1934, and was put in an "untasked" cell. This continued until he was transferred on January 3 to the Government Civil Hospital where he died at 4 a.m. on Sunday last.

Dr. L. D. Pringle, medical officer of the Victoria Gaol until January 10, said that deceased on being admitted to the prison was found to be in a very poor condition. He suffered from piles and was a chronic opium addict. On January 2 he sent deceased to the Government Civil Hospital as he thought that an operation was necessary. The reason why he did so was that the Civil Hospital had better facilities for an operation than the Gaol hospital. After Dr. C. H. Thompson, medical officer of the Government Civil Hospital, had examined the deceased, he said that the deceased was in a very poor condition and that the operation was necessary. The operation was performed on January 3, but the deceased died on January 4.

AIR SERVICE TO AUSTRALIAScott On British
Supremacy

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Jan. 4.
Mr. C. W. A. Scott and Mr. T. Campbell Black were the guests of the Press Club at a luncheon given last month in honour of their successful flight in the air race to Australia.

Mr. Horace Sanders, who presided welcomed "these two masters of momentum" as he termed them, for the achievement they had placed to the credit of the British Empire. Their success was a triumph of British sportsmanship, brains, and equipment, and with this combination they had thrived time, demolished space, and brought Britain and Australia as near physically as they were already in sympathy.

Mr. Scott, in reply, said the Milderhall-Melbourne race might not be the last race of importance to Australia. There might be others, because Adelaide was already talking about its centenary. In deprecating any comparison between racing and commercial machines, and a suggestion that the Dutch might run a more efficient and a speedier commercial air service to Australia, Mr. Scott said he could not believe that Britain would allow for a moment any other country to become supreme in air communications with Australia.

Mr. Black stated that they were seriously charged by the Australians to make it clear that money spent on ground services would not be wasted. The Australians wanted Britain to believe that money devoted to aviation would be refunded; even if not in dividends it would be in benefits to the Dominion.

Mr. Bruce, High Commissioner for Australia, said the race had demonstrated that "we still breed them a little better than other nations, whatever they may say they do."

ARMED ROBBERY ABOARD
JUNK

An armed robbery occurred on board a junk at Leung Ku Tan, in Chinese waters, on Sunday night.

According to a Police report, made by a man who is stated to be a smuggler of salt and sugar, it appears that the junk left Ching Shan Keuk in company with three other vessels on January 14 and anchored at Leung Ku Tan, on Saturday. On Sunday night, shots were fired at the vessel from the shore, and the men aboard the junk were ordered to come ashore. When they had done so, the junk people were bound with ropes by the robbers, who were four in number, two being armed.

The robbers then went aboard the junk and stole 13 piculs of salt and 18 piculs of sugar, transferring the cargo to another vessel. They then made off in the direction of Shek Tai Tsai, taking with them, in addition to the sugar and salt, a rampart belonging to the junk.

ARMED ROBBERY

Seven Men Charged

Sung Yung, 32, houseboy, Ip Yau, 22, painter, Ip Hing 45, bricklayer, Lok Sau, 32, ship's cook, Chan Shing, 45, launch engineer, Sit Chun, 37, builder and Chan Sang, 30, ship's fireman, all unemployed, were charged before Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday with armed robbery on January 2 at about 7.15 a.m. at 41 Cheung Sha Wan Road, 1st floor, when Chui Ming Fuk was robbed of two diamond rings, one gold and jade bangle, one grey felt hat, one metal wrist watch and $90 in paper money.

At the outset of yesterday's hearing Detective Inspector A. J. W. Durling, who is in charge of the prosecution, asked leave to withdraw the charge against the sixth defendant as the police had no evidence against him and he was not identified. Sit Chun was accordingly discharged by his Worship.

The 1st, 2nd and 3rd defendants were alternately charged with receiving stolen property. In outlining the case Inspector Durling said that on January 2, at about 7.15 a.m. there was a knock at the door and the amah, the only servant in the house, answered. A man asked to see her master. The man said that he was asked to see the master on instructions from the military officer at Shamshui-po Camp where the complainant was working.

On being admitted one man entered, and he was followed by two men, who in turn, were followed by two more men. Three of the men went inside the master's bedroom and said that they had come to search for illicit opium.

The master asked them to do so as he had no such contraband in his house. The three men then produced daggers, and enjoined the master to keep quiet while at the same time one man seized the complainant by the throat. The amah who was present during the whole scene heard, and saw all that went on.

The complainant's 5 year old son got up just then and commenced to cry and screamed. The amah was told to keep the boy quiet, otherwise she and the boy would be done to death. The complainant's 14 year old son, and son-in-law were then bound also and gagged and taken into the bedroom.

The complainant's 5 year old son got up just then and commenced to cry and screamed. The amah was told to keep the boy quiet, otherwise she and the boy would be done to death. The complainant's 14 year old son, and son-in-law were then bound also and gagged and taken into the bedroom.

One of the robbers then demanded the key to the safe and after some difficulty was unable to open same. The complainant was threatened and eventually the safe was opened. Two or three of the men then commenced a search of the safe and scattered papers and documents all over the place.

After the articles and money were pocketed, the complainant was rebound and gagged and the gang left the house.

Weapons Found
L. S. Hill, who was on duty near the vicinity, heard whistles blown and saw a small running. On enquiring he found out the cause and when on his way to the place, he picked up two instruments and found guns and wire on the staircase of 41 Cheung Sha Wan Road. When he entered the house he met three men who handed him the guns and handkerchiefs which were subsequently handed to Inspector Shafrin. Chinese Detective 51 found one knife.

Arrests Made

Later on at 11 on the same morning on information received Inspector Durling and a party of police visited 88 Aphu Street, second floor, where the 4th, 5th and 6th defendants were found. In the wooden frame window in the kitchen, Chinese Detective Sek Teu found a hole made by white ants which apparently had been tampered with lately. Inspector Durling was called and a paper containing the gold and jade bangle was found.

The three men were later arrested and taken to the Shamshui-po Police Station.

On further information received the police visited 13 Cedar Street where 1st, 2nd and 3rd defendants were arrested on the third floor. When the door was opened first defendant was in the cubicle. He was told of the police visit and they expected him of complicity. In answer to a question defendant pointed to a drawer and said that his younger brother had the key to it. The drawer was subsequently broken open and a diamond ring found. When defendant was searched 4 $5 notes were found in his possession. The second defendant was searched, and 2 $5 notes and the grey felt hat which was stolen were found on him. The third defendant handed up 4 $5 notes. When further searched 6 $5 notes more were found on him. These men were then taken to the police station and when asked as to what had become of the other diamond ring the second defendant handed in another 2 $5 notes. Later, in the afternoon, at about 4 o'clock acting on further information the police visited 100 Canton Road, first floor, and the seventh defendant was arrested. When searched nothing was found on him.

At the station the fifth defendant volunteered to bring the police to 88 Aphu Street and there the wrist watch was retrieved from a pile of rubbish which the police had overlooked in their search.

Identification

All the defendants were charged with robbery the following day at 1 p.m. and the 1st, 2nd and 3rd defendants were further charged with receiving stolen property. At an identification parade held by A.S.P. Mr. Thompson, 21 men were present, the second defendant was identified by the complainant, his son and the amah and the third defendant by the son-in-law.

This closed the police opening statement and the amah Tsui See was next put into the box where she corroborated the early part of Inspector Durling's opening outline after which the case was adjourned until 2.15 this afternoon.

WANCHAI MURDER RECALLED

Allegations Of Intimidation Against Police

In the course of a murder trial which came before the Chief Justice yesterday, the defence submitted that a statement made by the accused person at the No. 2 Police Station could not be admitted as evidence, because intimidation had been used against the accused person before the statement was obtained.

At the close of the case for the Crown, the accused person gave evidence on the point of intimidation alone, and after hearing him, the Chief Justice, His Honour, Mr. A. D. A. MacGregor, ruled that he was satisfied that no intimidation was used and further that there was no neglect of the formalities which should have been observed by a responsible police officer.

ACCUSED IN WITNESS BOX

The accused was Li Shing, alias "Li Wing Wa" and he was charged with killing with others, a clansman named Lam Ming, alias Lam Chung-wing, aged about 35, on October 28.

Mr. J. A. Fraser, Assistant Attorney-General, appeared for the Crown, while Mr. H. C. Macnamara, instructed by Mr. J. M. Hall, of Messrs. Lyson and Hall, appeared for the defence.

The Case Outlined

Mr. Fraser said the victim of the killing was an assistant of the accused at a hawkers' stall in D'Agular Street. On Sunday, October 28, he left the stall in the afternoon to attend a football match at Wanchai and it was while he was returning home and the streets were crowded with people who had been watching the match, that the killing took place and the murderers escaped.

Accused and others went on their errand of death with a butcher's knife and a piece of metal, and it would be stated that after being struck on the shoulder with the metal bar, the unfortunate man was plied from behind whilst an assailant plunged a knife into his chest.

The wounded man staggered the length of two shops before he collapsed outside No. 13, Queen's Road East and when Sgt. Whitcroft was informed and an ambulance summoned, he was found to be dead. Meanwhile the murderers had scattered up Wing Fung Street and Arsenal Street and defendant was seen running with what appeared to be a knife in his hand. At any rate, the Crown would prove that he had a knife immediately after the killing, and that if he did not actually kill the man, he took an active part.

The Arrest

Accused was arrested whilst coming off a steamer from Canton at 11 p.m. on November 28 and he made a statement to Sgt. Fitch on which the Crown mainly based their case. That statement had been objected to at the Magistrate's and its reading would be opposed by Mr. Macnamara at this trial. Prisoner also made a denial when charged later.

The other men involved were of being charged as there was not sufficient evidence against them, but the jury would think, after hearing the evidence, that prisoner was actuated by a motive of vengeance against his clansman.

Dr. L. D. Pringle, formerly in charge of the Victoria Mortuary, deposed as to a post mortem examination of the deceased which showed that death was due to a knife wound five and a half inches deep, in the left chest.

Sergeant Fitch's Evidence

Sgt. Fitch gave evidence, during which Mr. Macnamara interposed that the defence were not alleging intimidation on the journey to No. 2 Police Station but only at the station.

Giving evidence, Detective Sergeant Fitch denied all allegations of having intimidated the accused into making his statement.

Mr. Fraser: It was alleged by the accused that you struck him. Is that so?

Sergeant Fitch: I did not strike him.

It was alleged by the accused that you squeezed his neck. Is that so?—I did not squeeze his neck.

Did you in fact hold him?—No, sir. I did not touch him. Did you see anybody else interfere with him at all?—Nobody could have done so, sir. I was there and I did not see anyone do so.

Was he ever told that it would be better for him if he made a statement?—No, sir.

Or that he would gain in any way by making a statement?—No. Or that something would happen to him if he did not make a statement or something like that?—No, sir.

Until the accused asked questions in the Magistrate's Court, had you heard complaints about you using violence on him?—No.

Cross-Examination

Before cross-examining Sergeant Fitch, Mr. Macnamara explained that the questions he would put to the witness contained nothing personal at all. He had to ask them because he had been instructed to do so.

In answer to Mr. Macnamara, Sergeant Fitch admitted that the accusations brought against him by the accused were made at the Magistrate's before the accused had seen any lawyer in the matter and obtained advice.

Mr. Macnamara: I want to put it fairly what he said about you. He said that you got your left arm round his neck and squeezed it; at the same time, you hit his head with your right hand.

Sergeant Fitch: I did not do that. Mr. Macnamara: He further said that you did not administer the proper caution to him, in fact that you did not administer any caution to him at all?—I did. On the boat and in the office.

Mr. Macnamara: He also said that the answers in the statement were made by him when he was frightened by the way you had treated him, and all he said was "Yes, Yes" to all questions put to him.—No, sir. That is not true.

His story is that he made his statement when he was frightened. All he replied was "Yes, Yes"—He was not frightened at all. He was quite calm.

He says he was not in Queen's Road East at all. His case is that he was in Wing Fung Street and that he had nothing whatever to do with this crime. If he was telling the truth, there is something gravely wrong somewhere. You realise that or course?—Yes.

Evidence was given in the afternoon by Chief Chinese Detective Inspector Chu Heung, Lance Sergeant Ip Sou Sai, Detective Sergeant Lo Kwan all of whom deposed to the fact that no violence or intimidation was used.

Inspector Rodgers of No. 2 Police Station, who was on duty in Charge Room on the night of November 28, said that he had occasion to visit the Chinese Detective Office during that night.

He saw no violence used. Evidence was also given by Police Interpreter D. Wong who corroborated the statement that no violence or intimidation was used.

Accused's Version

The accused gave evidence at the close of the Crown case. After relating the circumstances of his arrest, he alleged that he was led into the Chinese Detective Office at No. 2 Police Station by a Chinese officer, and that while inside, he answered several questions, some in the affirmative and some in the negative, after which Sergeant Fitch was alleged to have struck him and to have assaulted him. He claimed also that he made the statement not knowing what he was doing because he was frightened. He merely answered "Yes, Yes" to questions put to him.

Asked by Mr. Fraser why he was frightened, witness said he was afraid he would be further assaulted.

After further questions, Mr. Fraser said: "I put it to you that after being arrested and taken to the Police Station, and not realising the consequences, you spoke the truth willingly?—That is not so."

I go further than that and say that now realising that this only

SCHOOL CURRICULUM

Dear Sir,—May I through the courtesy of your esteemed paper reply to Mr. L. H. I.'s letter, to you of the 18th inst?

I can assure Mr. L. H. I. that I have given great consideration to what are being taught in local schools nowadays. All good schools should teach and train our children to be:—

(1) Independent, that is, to be self-supporting as well as to be able to shoulder responsibilities when the occasion arises.

(2) Good citizens, that is, men to whom the country could always depend upon to preserve Law and Order.

Every student need not have to be "born" to become either an efficient stenographer or book-keeper. On the other hand, students who wish to become great engineers, scientists, physicians etc. have to be gifted with some "natural talents" before they can ever hope for success. It is not my way to disillusion students who have great ambitions in life but I feel it only fair to them that they should know that "to possess an ambition for some highly honourable profession, such as engineering etc. is very common, and natural, but to accomplish any of these professions is—rare and difficult.

I will not say that the study of Trigonometry is absolutely useless. It is only so, when students cannot afford to sit for higher studies and have to seek for a living immediately on leaving school. Even simpletons could see that the mind could be better trained if it is afforded a further course of study in universities. But, unfortunately only a very small percentage of the students can afford to sit for higher studies.

It is more or less ridiculous to say that commercial firms can ever do without expert typists etc. Applying L. H. I.'s argument all commercial firms could easily economise to a very great extent, if they were to dispense with the services of Book-keepers etc. The reason why this step is not taken, even in such hard times, shows conclusively that expert typists etc. are absolutely necessary to every successful business firm.

The Head of a Firm may have the ability to tackle complicated problems, but without able assistance from his employees, he would be at sea. Take for instance the Railway-engine. It signifies greatness and power, but without coaches and trucks attached to it, it would be of no great value to anyone. Similarly, no matter how clever the Head of a firm may be, he will be greatly handicapped without efficient service from his employees.

It is evident that Mr. L. H. I. does not yet realise the hardships and difficulties parents have to contend with when sending their children to school. All parents, it need not be asked would like nothing better than to see their children given better opportunities of learning. The Educational authorities should, in fairness to parents, consider more for the benefits of the poor rather than for the rich. If it is admittedly so, then it is high time that some steps should be taken to include commercial training in school—Yours, etc.

After his Lordship had ruled that the statement was admissible on the ground that there was no neglect of the formalities which should have been observed by a responsible Police Officer, the statement made by the accused was read to the jury.

In the course of that statement, the accused is alleged to have said: "I was present and assisted the murder, but I did not strike the death blow." In another part, the statement goes on to say: "I was asked to assist in a fight and I agreed, because I am a member of the same Society as they."

OBITUARY

Mr. Kwik Djoen Eng The Sugar King

News has been received by cable in Hong Kong of the death of Mr. Kwik Djoen Eng, the multimillionaire who was known as the Java Sugar King. He was one of the colony's wealthiest property owners with great interests at North Point.

A native of Fukien, the late Mr. Kwik Djoen Eng spent many years in the Java sugar business from which he amassed a vast fortune of many million dollars. At one time his Hong Kong branch was one of the biggest sugar dealers in Nam Pak Hong, trading under the name of Kiem Tjian Han.

The late Mr. Kwik became seriously ill while on a most recent trip from Java to Formosa. Despite the best medical attention from European and Japanese doctors he died at his Formosa residence during the week-end. He was about seventy years old and is survived by a number of sons, daughters and grand-children.

Some years ago, he spent a huge sum on the North Point reclamation development with the intention of erecting godowns and wharves for ocean-liners. The scheme, however, underwent modification, owing to trade depression. On the reclamation now stands a number of Chinese and European style residences, owned by the late Mr. Kwik.

Mr. Kwik lived in Java for over 40 years and met with great success—thanks to his business abilities—in extending his uncle's, Mr. Kwik Hoo Tong's firm of Glim Moh in Solo (Sourakarta) to one of great magnitude.

In 1921, Mr. Kwik returned to Hong Kong, where he has established the Ching Siong Company. It was then that the idea occurred to him to build a quay wall of over 1,700 feet for the accommodation of big cargo steamers. The work was eventually put in hand, being entrusted to the Netherlands Harbour Works Company. In 1928, the late Mr. Kwik was decorated by the Netherlands Consul in Hong Kong with the Officership of the Order of Orange-Nassau.

During his lifetime, the late Mr. Kwik did a great deal of charitable work amongst the poorer classes in Java, and he founded a Chinese school at Djocjarta and an Anglo-Chinese school at Semarang.

NEW BORSTAL SCHEME

Land Reclamation At The Wash

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Jan. 4.

The Holland (Lincolnshire) County Council have agreed to sell land, including three acres of the sea-bank, as well as the outmarsh at Freiston, near Boston, to the Prison Commissioners for the purposes of establishing a new Borstal institution.

The scheme is intended to provide more outdoor work for youths undergoing Borstal treatment. At present there are institutions at Portland, Feltham, Borstal, Camp Hill, Nottingham and Lowdham (Notts), and many of the boys have a short preparatory period at Wormwood Scrubs. In recent years the authorities have recognized the need for providing healthy outdoor work for the boys placed under their care, and the scheme at Boston is regarded as a promising experiment. It will be necessary to start the scheme with an adequate number of boys to enable a camp, with hutments, to be laid out. Experience has shown the authorities the value of work in the open air in the training of the boys.

The Home Secretary, Sir John Gilmour, in the House of Commons some time ago referred to the scheme, stating that, in view of the increase in the number of youths sentenced to Borstal detention, it had been found necessary to open a new training institution in Lincolnshire. The boys would be employed in reclaiming an area of the outmarsh on the north-west coast of the Wash, and would be accommodated in a hutted camp. It was estimated that the total capital expenditure would not exceed £22,500. One of the features of Borstal training was the provision of healthy outdoor work for which none of the unoccupied prisons offered facilities.

PIANO RECITAL

Coming Treat At Roof Garden

Madame Renee Florigny, the French pianist of international reputation, who recently arrived in the Colony, is scheduled to give a Recital in the Roof Garden of The Hong Kong Hotel on the evening of January 30 at 9 o'clock.

She is making a leisurely round the world trip and has already covered an extensive field. At all the places visited in Europe, Canada, the United States of America, South American Republics, India, the Straits Settlements, Japan and Shanghai she has given successful concerts.

In each and every instance the Press reports have been full of convincing enthusiasm concerning her brilliant playing and musical critics have termed her a "female Paderewski."

Madame Florigny has an exceptionally wide repertoire, but likes especially the composers Beethoven, Chopin and Mozart. Those who have heard her play claim that her interpretation of these Masters is an unforgettable joy, so subtle is her understanding of their moods, and so smooth and finished her technique in rendering their masterpieces.

A welcome treat is in store for music lovers on January 30 and the event at the Hong Kong Hotel Roof Garden should not be missed. An excellent programme is promised for the occasion which is as follows:—

MOUNTAIN SIDE MOVING

Giving Considerable Trouble

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Jan. 4.

The mountainside at Troedrhfuwch, between Bargoed and Rhymney, Glamorgan, which has been giving considerable trouble to local authorities for some years, is reported to be on the move again. After the heavy rains fissures have appeared on the slope above the Troedrhfuwch Inn, and a stretch of 150 yards on the main roadway, which runs alongside, is badly twisted and cracked and traffic is compelled to move very cautiously. The gas and water services are also affected, the conduits having fallen as much as 8 ft. in some places. Gangs of workmen are at work day and night restoring the alignment and repairing breakages while other workmen are engaged in ballasting the worst portions of the road.

Mr. E. Watkin Edwards, engineer to the Rhymney Water Board, said that the movement was the worst he had known for thirteen years and was giving real cause for anxiety. He had not seen anything like it before. He would not be surprised to see the whole road collapse before the end of the week. If that occurred it would stop all road traffic between Cardiff and the Rhymney Valley. The trouble, he said, was not caused by mining subsidence, but by heavy rains following a dry summer.

It is understood that the G.W.R. branch line to Rhymney Bridge, which runs at the bottom of the valley has not been affected so far.

The mountainside at Troedrhfuwch has been moving for 40 or 45 years, and considerable damage has been caused from time to time. Four years ago an extensive landslide occurred on the Monmouthshire side, which overthrew a colliery and the railway and the road between New Tredegar and Aberystwyth.

EARLY SUPPRESSION OF REDS EXPECTED

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).) Nanking, Jan. 14.

The belief that Reds in Szechuen and Kweichow will be speedily suppressed, despite the present apparent gravity of the situation, has been expressed by military leaders here.

Most of the Reds now in Szechuen are natives of provinces along the Yangtze Valley and are eager to return to their homes. Since the strongest lines of the Communists have been broken up by Government units in October, the "Red armies" are fatigued and have lost the spirit of fighting, and most of them retreat without fighting when encountered by the regular troops. They are, furthermore, not trained to stand the severities of Kweichow and Szechuan, and many of them have deserted the Red lines. Their lack of munition, especially of heavy artillery, will be another factor for their defeat. Great losses of military supplies have been suffered by them following their retreat from Kiangsi, and it is now estimated that they possess no more than 20,000 rifles.

PACIFIC EQUALITIES

In contemplating the wreck of the naval conversations in London, American pacifists are faced with a real poser. The conversations hinged on the Japanese plea for parity, a plea which on its face has much justification. Japan is now a world power. When the United States rose to that eminence, it demanded parity with the British fleet—and it got it. Now Japan is asking for it. Why cannot the United States be as accommodating toward Japan as Britain was toward the United States?

When one examines the Japanese thesis the case becomes more plausible. Japan asks for "equal opportunity." As the London conversations ended Britain and America appear in agreement on the "equality of security" formula, but Japan feels that the 5-5-3 ratio does not give her equality. She insists on a "common upper limit," holds out to pacifists an almost irresistible 2-2-2 plan, talks of "defence equality" and of limiting navies to small "defensive ships."

Suppose every nation limits its craft to ships with small cruising radio. Even a layman could appreciate that it would be incapable of offence against the homeland of a co-signatory. Pacifists should logically be the first to accept such a programme. It would clearly set at naught the fears of attack, say, on the Pacific coast.

However, the case is not so simple as that. Limitation of navies to such a defensive plan might mean that the navies would be immunized against attacking the others. But it would not necessarily mean an insurance against attack on one another's rights. The United States is still responsible for the Philippines. Not for nine years will American sovereignty be withdrawn from the islands. Another American right is the Open Door of equal opportunity for trading with China. These are rights that the United States hopes to safeguard by pacific means.

Would equality of armaments assure these treaty and traditional rights? Washington does not think so. Recent history lends support to its lack of faith. Japan has detached four of the wealthiest provinces—generally called Manchuria—from China. By setting up an oil-selling monopoly in those provinces, Japan is now engaged in freeing out foreign sellers. If this is possible in one part of China, it is equally possible in another. Japanese spokesmen, in fact, called on other nations to keep their hands off China. They said that Japan objected to certain commercial deals—which other nations had had with China. Then the Japanese Ambassador in Washington added that Japan alone must decide what is good for China. Strange words for a nation which is asking for defensive equality!

The fact is that the United States feels that it cannot attach any faith to Japanese protestations. It is sometimes the friendliest thing to be plain spoken. In American opinion that time seems to have arrived. Japan would get the support of world pacifism for her plea for defensive equality if pacifists felt that they could be confident of Japanese policy. The trouble is political, not technical; the lack of equality of security under conditions of co-operation, not equality of armament.

But there is all the difference in the world between not signing a pact because of lack of faith, and building up a navy in order to protect rights. The question has recently been asked whether Americans would be prepared to fight for either the Open Door or the Philippines. There has been not the slightest enthusiasm. But those same people would rise to a man in answer to the question whether they would defend American shores. This is a tribute to America's good sense. Any failure at London must not be made the excuse for a building race. The United States should not decide that she can defend her interests

GERMAN SCHOOL IN CANTON

Report Of Closing Denied

The Berlin Mission in Canton writes as follows:—

With reference to the report by your special correspondent in the issue of January 18, the administration of the Berlin Missionary Society in Canton informs us that the report which says that the Sino-German School in Shikwan would be closed after the end of the present term is not right.

On the contrary the Berlin Mission will not close this important school-work in Shikwan, although the Berlin Mission receives now less money for her work from Germany. We will maintain this German-Chinese School as long as possible and we will do our utmost not to close this school.

It is therefore absolutely wrong to say that all German missionary schools in China will be closed. The Berlin Mission is still working in an effective manner only to give an example in the important German-Chinese-Middle-School in Canton and is also maintaining its whole school-work in Sunwuf Other German Missions are maintaining their school-work as well as far as possible.

We regret therefore that such notice was published saying that the funds destined for educational mission-work will now be diverted for other purposes in Germany. The Berlin Mission, as one of the most important German Missions in China, must reject this absolutely false information.

The reason why the German Missions abroad are in a difficult financial situation to-day, of which the foreign newspapers have taken notice in various publications, is only the strong German currency restriction not allowing money to leave Germany to a large extent. But the German Missions are hoping to be able to overcome these present difficulties and that these strong currency restrictions in Germany may be weakened in the near future.

DEBT PAYMENTS MORATORIUM

Shanghai Petition Rejected

Shanghai, Jan. 21.

The petition of the first special district, Amalgamated Street Unions for sanction of the proposed one year's moratorium for debt payments of 1934 has been turned down.

Mr. Wu Teh Chen, the Mayor of Greater Shanghai, in an interview, declared he had no sympathy with the moratorium plan as a method of preventing a major crisis in Shanghai business because, in itself, it contributed to the violation of the traditional custom governing good faith among Chinese commercial and industrial interests.

CREATING SECURITY FOR ALL

Aim Of French Foreign Policy

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).) Moscow, Jan. 20.

Nothing will turn the French foreign policy from its aim in attaining an all round reconciliation by creating "security for all," declared M. Laval, in an interview given to the Geneva representative of the Soviet Government organ "Investia," stressing that France's policy was clear consequential and working disinterestedly in the cause for peace. The North-East pact idea, said M. Laval, had only been made possible by Soviet's decision to join the League, and Litvinoff and he, by an official agreement recently signed in Geneva, had expressed their determination to bring this plan to a successful conclusion.

Stating that the time had come to declare that whatever country still harbours the idea of aggression it would find itself confronted by a strong alliance, M. Laval went on to say that, according to the degree in which the North-East pact materialises, it will be possible to judge the practicability and complete materialisation of the standpoint in which Mussolini and he reached full agreement.

M. Laval concluded the interview by pointing out that really general security depends on the common will to co-operate and that if, apart from the plans already drafted, any other territory in Europe makes proposals contributing to a common security, the French Government would lend such endeavours the fullest support.

Transocean Kuo Min.

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).) Paris, Jan. 20.

Describing the results of Laval's negotiations in Geneva as the "turning point of the French foreign policy and reversion to the track it should never have left," Pertinax, the political correspondent of the "Echo de Paris" casts off the recent gloom and joins the general chorus of approval raised in the Paris Sunday Press. M. Laval, say the Sunday papers, informed the Polish Foreign Minister, Col. Beck, on Saturday that if Poland persisted in declining to participate in the North-East Pact then a separate agreement between France, Russia and Czechoslovakia would be signed without her. The energetic tone adopted by Laval is said to have caused consternation in Polish political circles where not only the Franco-Polish but also the Polish-Roumanian alliance is regarded as tottering and the total isolation of Poland is feared.

It must not be said that the League of Nations or certain countries are pursuing the Germany policy, states "Oeuvre" in summing up the Geneva negotiations, the opposite in fact being the case. Germany, however, asserts the paper, inspires the nations assembled in Geneva with such fear that the question of her return to their ranks is only broached with the greatest caution.

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).) Shanghai, Jan. 14.

A party of twenty foreign journalists, representing British, American, French, German and Japanese newspapers, has been organized for an inspection tour of two weeks to visit the districts formerly occupied by the Communist bandits but recently recovered by the Government.

Twelve of these journalists have been booked to leave by to-night's train from Shanghai to reach Nanking early to-morrow morning, breakfasting at the International Club. The other eight will start off from the Capital. The party will be entertained at luncheon by the Nanking Press Association, and at dinner by the Foreign Office.

The steamer will call at Kukiang on the 17th (Thursday), but the party will not stop at this port. Arriving at Nanchang on the 18th, it will spend two days there. From Nanchang out the party will start out for Lanchuan, Nanfung, Kwangchow, Nangtu, Wentang, Changchun, Fungsha and Yusan. From Yusan the party will return to Shanghai by rail via Hangchow on the Hangchow-Kiangsu Railway, arriving Shanghai not later than January the 29th.

Facilities have been arranged for members of the party to despatch telegraphic messages to Shanghai at press rate at various stages of the journey.

The plan is one by which Signor Mussolini hopes to control Italian capital investment and to restrict the spending of funds abroad.

HAPSBURG MONARCHY RESTORATION

Hopeful Statement By The Vice-Chancellor

Vienna, January 20. Germany's victory in the Saar plebiscite is believed to have alarmed Austrian official circles, who are now openly boosting the restoration of a monarchy in order to offset the Nazi challenge.

Additional evidence that the proposal to make Archduke Eugene president actually begins a big monarchist drive is afforded by the fact that during the night pamphlets were distributed throughout Vienna similar to those formerly used by Socialists and Nazis, but this time the fluttering bits of paper were stamped: "Hell Otto!"

Reuter.

"PURE NONSENSE"

Vienna, January 20. The talk of a plan to place Prince Eugene at the head of the Austrian state, as successor to President Miklas, is "pure nonsense," according to Baron Wiesner, representative of the Monarchist party in Vienna.

"The man responsible for the Hapsburg restoration rumours in Austria is the German minister, Herr von Papen, who is aiming to create an artificial pro-Hapsburg movement in order to pretend that Austria is dangerous to the peace of Europe," Baron Wiesner added. Prince von Starhemberg, the Vice-Chancellor, addressing 2,000 under-leaders of the Heimwehr declared to-day that a return of the Hapsburgs to Austria would secure the peace of Central Europe.

But he added, when the question ripens it will be solved by the Legitimists.

PRESIDENCY PROPOSAL

An earlier message stated: The greatest secrecy is being maintained with regard to a proposal, understood to have been adopted last night at a conference of leaders, for the nomination of Archduke Eugene to succeed President Miklas, whose term of office expires in October.

The proposal was made following a Cabinet meeting and in high political circles is described as the beginning of "the Hapsburg campaign."

The constitution at present bars a Hapsburg from the Presidency of Austria.

The Archduke Eugene is an exile, living at Basle, and is cousin to Prince Otto.

Archduke Otto's hopes of being called to the Austrian throne are again revived by the reports from Vienna.

LLOYD GEORGE REPORT

May Join The Government

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, January 21, 7:30 p.m.)

London, January 21. The possibility of Mr. Lloyd George eventually joining the National Government is envisaged by the political correspondent in the "Morning Post" who stresses the Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Chamberlain's declaration that the Government will refrain from voicing opinion concerning Mr. Lloyd George's proposals until details had been made known.

The correspondent adds that should the Government decide to include the Premier's proposals in its own programme at the next general election extensive reconstruction of the Cabinet would become inevitable in order to find place therein for Mr. Lloyd George who, according to the correspondent, has a large sum of money at his disposal for election purposes and who intends if need be, to put up his own candidates in support of his policy.

DEMONSTRATION AT BRUSSELS

Discontent Over Wage Cuts

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, January 21, 4:30 p.m.)

Brussels, Jan. 21. Many thousands of civil servants affiliated to the left parties on Sunday demonstrated in the streets of Brussels to give expression to their discontent over the wage cuts and other measures put into force by the Government. There were no serious incidents but it had been generally noticed that Socialists leaders had the greatest difficulties to restrain their followers.

All round wage cuts, numerous scandals along with the ever increasing unemployment are the source of widespread discontent which is likely to threaten the existence of the Theunis cabinet.

A mass demonstration has been organised by the Socialists for February 24 at which the civil servants, labourers, traders and unemployed are to take part.

In political circles the outbreak has renewed the government crisis and the subsequent seizure of power by the socialists is frankly discussed in this connection and very strong doubt is expressed whether Theunis will succeed in weathering the storm.

OIL TANKER VALVERDA ON FIRE

Desperate Situation In Mid-Atlantic

(Special to "Hong Kong Daily Press").

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, January 21, 7:30 p.m.)

London, January 21. Fire broke out in mid-Atlantic on board the British tanker Valverde, which according to the latest S.O.S. call sent out by the burning ship is in a desperate situation, the flames having apparently already spread to the cargo and the crew unable to hold out much longer.

Several steamers including the German boat Saarland are rushing to the ship's assistance, but the Saarland which is the nearest one to the disaster is still more than 500 miles distant and will be unable to reach the scene before Tuesday.

Valverde, which was travelling from Curacao to Hamburg with a cargo of oil, was launched last year and has 8,000 tons displacement.

ANOTHER REPORT

London, January 21. H.M.S. Frohisher and the German liner Saarland are steaming full speed to the assistance of the British oil tanker Valverde which is afire in the Atlantic five hundred miles northward of Puerto Rico.

Flames started in the engines, spreading rapidly to other parts of the ship. The latest wireless message says "flames a deck, keeping into the wind to keep fire from cargo."

An earlier message doubted the possibility of holding out much longer and stated that two lifeboats had been already destroyed. The Valverde was built at Glasgow last year.

Reuter.

REASSURING MESSAGE

London, Jan. 21. The owners of the Valverde have received a reassuring message from Captain Thomson to the effect that the engine room was gutted and the flames had now subsided. No mention was made of the crew.

The owners assume that the Valverde is out of danger and the crew is unharmed.

Paris, Jan. 20. Plunging into a cauldron full of boiling soup was the original method of committing suicide chosen by an inmate of the Puy de Dome prison. The contents of the cauldron were to have furnished the prisoners their midday meal.

The prisoner who was serving a term of seven years imprisonment, but had distinguished himself by exemplary conduct, received the news that his wife whom he dearly loved had obtained a divorce from him and had also been granted custody of their children. This so worked on his mind that the unhappy man took this desperate way to end his life.

RAKOSI TRIAL IN HUNGARY

Revolt Memories To Be Revived

(Special to the "Hong Kong Daily Press" (Copyright).)

Budapest, Jan. 20. Memories of the short-lived but bloody Communist reign of terror in Hungary which began in March, 1919 and lasted till August, the same year when the Red regime was swept away by the national army under Horthy, will be revived in the trial of the former Hungarian "Peoples Commissary," Matthias Rakosi who, after serving eight years penal servitude for high treason, will again have to answer charges of complicity in 47 murders, high treason, and 14 other criminal offences.

The trial which will open on Monday has created unusual interest as attested by the fact that the representatives of the Soviet Russian Embassies in Paris and London and the Soviet Legation here as well as numerous foreign journalists will attend the proceedings which are expected to last for two weeks.

Following the collapse of the Hungarian Soviet Government, Rakosi fled to Russia but returned to Hungary in 1924 under instructions from Moscow in order to re-organise the Communist party and to prepare the restoration of the Soviet regime in Hungary. He was arrested shortly afterwards and sentenced to eight years penal servitude and after serving the sentence was re-arrested on charges arising out of the Hungarian authorities' untiring inquiries into the ghastly history of the Communist regime of 1919. More than 100 witnesses will be called by the prosecution in the forthcoming trial.

Although officially nothing was divulged on the outcome of the discussions, the impression was gained that the negotiations had failed. In a non-committal communique full of commonplaces, it is merely stated that the Rome accords had been the subject of discussions and that hopes are entertained that these accords may be supplemented in a useful way.

BEY INSULTED AT MOSQUE

(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received, January 21, 7:30 p.m.)

Paris, January 21. Bey Turis was grossly insulted according to despatches to the Royalist paper "Action Francaise" which states that the Bey while paying his daily visit to the mosque on the occasion of the recent Mohammedan feast of Ramadan was the object of hostile communist demonstrations in the course of which he was denounced as a "renegade."

The paper further alleges that the entire crowd of communists surrounded the Bey and his suite and was compelled to listen to inflammatory speeches demanding the elimination of "French slavery" as well as the immediate return of certain natives who had been expelled for political reasons from Tunisian territory.

According to the paper a scuffle took place when the Bey left the mosque later and the Bey was obliged to use his fists in order to defend himself until French gendarmes cleared the streets.

The "Action Francaise" criticises the attitude of the French authorities whom the paper accuses of remaining passive in the face of such grave provocation.

THE DRIFT OF TENNIS TO PROFESSIONALISM

Open Tournament Predicted At Wimbledon Soon

Predictions that Fred Perry and H. Wilfred Austin will become professionals within a few months and that Wimbledon will become an open tournament within two or three years are being made by well informed lawn tennis experts.

The opinion of British enthusiasts, long conservative and anxious to maintain "the fair name of amateurism" in the forefront of the game, is fast changing in favour of the professional. An illustration of this change of attitude was provided at the recent five-day professional championship meeting at Wembley, on the outskirts of London. Despite thick fogs which penetrated the building and made transportation between the city and Wembley difficult, big crowds were attracted to the meeting, culminating with a gallery of about twelve thousand on the final night.

An earlier professional tournament at Southport, Lancashire, proved such a success that the local authorities decided to make it an annual affair.

While Perry has so far declined some very attractive offers for his professional services, it is believed in well informed circles that he is merely awaiting a more opportune moment, although his defeat by Crawford in the Australian championship may now make a little difference.

Austin as Well

Austin also has turned down financial offers but it is believed that in his case, too, it is merely a matter of time, and that once Perry takes the plunge Austin will follow shortly afterwards. Some authorities believe that both men will retain their amateur status long enough to defend the Davis Cup in 1935.

Without these two men Britain's amateur lawn tennis strength would be almost negligible for there are no other players in the country who are in the same street with them. So anxious are the officials of the Lawn Tennis Association to retain their services that some members of the council are said to favour loosening up the laws governing amateurism in such a way that both Perry and Austin could personally receive payment for acting in "educational" films but still retain their amateur status in the eyes of the L.T.A.

It will be recalled that prior to his trip to the United States and Australia Perry participated in a series of ten short films entitled "How to Play Tennis." He was opposed by Dan Maskell, the British professional champion, and the commentary was spoken by "Big Bill" Tilden. The films were made by a British company which paid an unspecified sum for Perry's appearances but, according to the film company and the L.T.A., this sum was paid over to charities. Thus Perry's amateur status was not affected.

Good Money

It is obvious, however, that there is good money in the game and neither man is exceptionally wealthy at the moment. Even if the L.T.A. passed a measure permitting film acting for personal gain it is believed that Britain's two stars would go the whole hog and join the professional ranks anyway, for it appears that plenty of money is to be picked up, even by the losers, in professional tournaments.

If Perry and Austin do join the paid players, they are likely to start a large scale exodus from the amateur field on the part of numerous other European stars. Such drawing cards as Christian Bousnus and Andre Merlon, of France, Baron Gottfried von Cramm, of Germany and Enrique Maier, of Spain, might respond to tempting offers.

Interest on Continent

Great interest in the professional side of the game on the Continent is indicated by the recent decision, at a meeting in Paris, to promote an international professional tournament on Davis Cup lines. Such a tournament is expected to draw even larger attendances than the present Davis Cup ties.

With such a drift of enthusiasm towards professionalism, big international amateur tournaments such as Wimbledon would lose much of their attraction to the public with a resultant serious drop in gate receipts. The Lawn Tennis Association makes most of its funds from the Wimbledon meeting and, although in an extremely sound financial position at the moment, it might not hold out indefinitely against professionalism. With continually decreasing gate receipts it probably would eventually have to consider coming into line with the ruling bodies of golf, football and cricket by allowing professionals into the tournament.

It may be a long time before the British public's increasing interest in professional lawn tennis forces this step but there are some who see open tournaments not more than two or three years away.

PERRY STILL NO. 1

"I still think Perry is No. 1 on the world list, followed by Crawford, von Cramm and Austin," declared Mr. Wallis Myers, the well-known lawn tennis authority.

This despite Perry's double defeat by Crawford, three times by Hughes, and by Quist and Bousnus—seven defeats within space of less than four months.

"It is true Crawford knows more about the science of the game and knows always what he is doing, but Perry is a great artist," Mr. Myers stated.

"He possesses such vitality! His reserve powers are almost inexhaustible."

but completely hidden inside by a new and lower roof. The new roof will be, scalloped and "stepped," illuminated by concealed lights, it will come above the gallery and clerestory windows.

The circle of iron pillars, too, is to go. New pillars will be set much further back, nearer the walls. The weight of the dome will be taken by a cantilever arrangement. The new floor will be 4ft. lower than the present one. The galleries, stripped of their ornate wooden pillars, will contain about ten rows of seats instead of one.

The work, which will cost some £40,000, will be completed in six months. No trace of "Orientalism" will be left in the new building, which, seating nearly 3,000, will be used for concerts and meetings.

"George, the Fourth would be surprised if he could see all this now," I remarked to a passing workman.

He paused, his hand on a wheelbarrow, and ruminatively eyed the defunct stork. "Ah," he responded, "but think how surprised some of them horses must have been when they first came in here."

HOME FOOTBALL MARATHON RACE

NOTES

Gossip From The Camps

(From A Correspondent)

Liverpool are continuing their interest in Wallington, Bristol Rovers' right-half. A representative of Liverpool accompanied the Rovers' party from Bristol to Lea Bridge especially to watch this player's form against Clapton Orient last Saturday.

Bristol City and Bristol Rovers have decided not to increase the price of admission to the ground for their cup-ties with Bury and Manchester United respectively, but the rates for seats in both stands and enclosures have been advanced.

There is a good deal of speculation in Bristol as to which game will attract the greater crowd, and there is a distinct leaning towards the Bristol Rovers-Manchester United clash.

Bristol City's win against Brighton and Hove on Saturday was their fifth successive victory. In these five games—two of them were in the cup—the Bristol club's defence conceded only one goal, the result of 7½ hours play. This is a tribute to the club's defenders, and in view of the forthcoming cup-tie with Bury is of more than passing interest. Which prompts the thought that history sometimes repeats itself. It is remembered down Bristol way that when the City club last met Bury in the National competition in 1903-9, the City went to the final.

Here is another coincidence. Manchester United were the City's conquerors in the final, and they are the visitors to Bristol Rovers on the same day that the City and Bury are meeting at Ashton Gate.

Will Bury Part?

Bury won't transfer Whitfield, their left-half—provided attendances at Gigg Lane are good. That was given out officially by the Gigg Lane people the other week. Is that why Cope, the reserve left-half, is under observation?

This lad from Llanelli has taken the eye. He isn't big but he tackles well, is quick on the ball and knows what to do with it. He doesn't look like getting in the first team so long as Whitfield is in his present form.

The cup-ties to come have started all sorts of thoughts. The cup-ties that have gone did just the same. One or two clubs, for instance, who were represented at the Barrow v. Aldershot second round meeting are thinking about the Summerbells.

Two brothers of that name play in the wing half positions for Aldershot. They played well at Barrow. One of the clubs wondering about them is Manchester City.

Very Useful

Of interest to the clubs interested in Hodge, the Bristol City right-winger. His last two goals have meant four points to his club. The player who can nip in with a scoring effort just when such is needed is valuable.

Though he has scored in only four games this season, Allan Fowler, the former Leeds United player, is second leading scorer for Southend United. Allan has two "hattricks" and two pairs to his credit.

By virtue of his "hat-trick" against New Brighton, Clarke is now leading scorer for Rochdale. He has five goals to his credit.

Did Huddersfield Town err when they signed Albert Malam from Chesterfield. Alf Lythgoe, from Stockport County and Jimmy Richardson from Newcastle United? They didn't. The forward line has been transformed by the new inside trio.

It is strange, too, that Malam, the smallest of the three who was said by others to be too small to succeed in the First Division, is the leading scorer.

Everybody happy. Billy Wrigglesworth, transferred from Chesterfield to the Wolves, scores the winning goal for his new team at Stoke. Lovett, transferred from Dinnington Athletic to Chesterfield, scored for his new team against Gateshead.

being Brentford's, recognised inside-right for a lengthy stretch. In fact, he's thriving in his new position. In 12 games on the right he scored only once. In seven games at inside-left he has scored eight goals.

There was no exchange of players when Jack Friar went from Port Vale to Preston North End and Ted Critchley went from Preston North End to Port Vale. The first deal had been completed before the Vale sounded the North End for the former Everton winger's services.

Will anything come of Chelsea's efforts to get Priestley, the Irish International inside-forward, back to Stamford Bridge. Mr. Leslie Knighton, the Londoners' manager, has been trying.

Southampton have been trying for several weeks to land an experienced inside forward. Peculiar then to learn that the Saints have a forward or two whose transfer they might consider.

London Hopes

Brentford have beaten a number of other clubs in getting the signature of James McKelvie, the Queen's Park half-back, on amateur forms. He has recently taken a business appointment in London and will reside at Ealing. McKelvie is a young, well-built player who comes with very good credentials. Tottenham are no doubt disappointed that he has thrown in his lot with Brentford, for the White Hart Lane club had been strongly linked with the name of this young Scot.

West Ham United have been coming along by leaps and bounds for some weeks. The present consistency of the Upton Park club compared with early season form is little short of amazing. London would be pleased if the two clubs to be promoted were Brentford and West Ham, but Lancashire are no doubt going to have a big say in this important question.

Another London club making a strong bid for a championship are Charlton Athletic. Never before in the history of the club has Charlton scored as many as six goals in an away game, as they did at Gillingham. Ralph Allen, whose transfer cost less than £1,000, from Brentford has surely already repaid the expenditure entailed for in the few weeks he has been with Charlton—his goal-scoring feats have stamped him as one of the most dangerous centre-forwards in the game. He got four at Gillingham, which brought his League total to 12 goals for seven games.

While on the subject of Charlton centre-forwards, it is interesting to note that Cyril Pearce, who broke a leg last Easter, is now back in practically full training again.

If Crystal Palace cannot find Simpson a place at centre-forward there are no doubt many clubs who would like the chance, and it seems more than likely that the Palace club will have offers for the transfer of the player in the near future. Simpson has years of football in him. A change of club would no doubt do him a world of good as it has done many other players in the past.

Two former Swindon Town players are being tried out in good company. Harry Topping, a young back, who was with the Town last season, is being given a chance with Barrow, while Alec Lambie, the dashing pivot who commanded such popularity with the Railwaymen, has gone to Bellshill Celtic, the Irish League club, on a month's trial.

The New Lingos

An American tourist in the course of his travels came across a Canadian North-West Indian. He tried his best Red Indian talk on him.

"White man, glad to see red man. White man hopes big chief is feeling well this morning." "Hey, hey," grinned the Indian. "Come over here and listen to this song. He's strong."

BRIGHTON DOME

To Wear New Clothes

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Jan. 4.

Sidney Smith it was who remarked playfully of the Royal Pavilion in Brighton, "One would think that St. Paul's Cathedral had gone to Brighton and pupped." And—to continue the fanciful metaphor—one of the pupples is now being drowned, for the famous Dome, adjoining the Pavilion, will soon be gone.

That is to say, it will not be destroyed, but so changed and modernized that even its best friends (if any) will not know its interior.

I stood the other day in the queer building (writes a correspondent) erected originally as a stables for the equally queer Royal Pavilion. All about me a purposeful company of workmen were busy at the task of destruction. In the obscurity (there were only one or two temporary electric lights) came the sound of thumping and hammering and the scrape of shovels.

It was rather like a half-demolished cinema set for an Oriental scene. The quasi-Moorish (or is it pseudo-Chinese?) ornamentation glittered forlornly. The lavishly decorated pillars rose from heaps of debris.

Famous Roof to Stay

Above me was the roof from which the building takes its name, with its many stained-glass windows, shaped like roses. This famous roof, I am told, is not to be demolished. It will remain,

CHAOS IN SPAIN

Surpluses Become Deficits

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Jan. 4. Numerous municipalities in Spain are in such a ruinous financial state that the Government in recent months has had to send special inspectors to examine the books and see if any order could be established in the accounts. Socialist inefficiency and squandering was the cause.

Madrid and Seville are among the important cities which are showing the woeful effects of three years of municipal maladministration.

This year it is estimated Madrid will close with a deficit of 2,500,000 pesetas (£100,000 at par). In 1931 there was a favourable balance of 4,000,000 pesetas.

In October, during the Socialist revolt the Government stepped in and the Mayor and Council were deposed. Senor Martinez de Velasco, Minister without Portfolio in the Lerroux Government, was entrusted in those anxious moments with the difficult task of straightening out Madrid's municipal affairs which were in a chaotic state.

Municipal employees, only interested apparently in obeying the orders of the "Casa del Pueblo" (Socialist Headquarters), joined the strike movement. Their contribution to the Red revolt was to abandon the various services of the city, and thus add to the confusion. Streets began to pile up with rubbish and garbage. The street cleaners, lamp-lighters and others stopped work.

Duty Neglected

The Mayor and his Socialist allies of the Council, whilst not taking a direct part in the movement, contributed their share by neglecting to do their duty. Senor Martinez de Velasco quickly saw that all city services were re-established.

The able Senor Salazar Alazar Alonso, ex-Minister of the Interior in the Sanjurjo Government, is now in charge of Madrid provisionally, assisted by a Council appointed by the Government.

Seville has experienced greater financial troubles than perhaps any other city in the Peninsula. The Government Inspector's report says:

"The lack of austerity observed in the administration of its municipal funds and the inflation of income in the budget have occasioned the loss of municipal credit and the conversion of the favourable balance of 1931 into a deficit now amounting to about 8,000,000 pesetas for 1933, and for 1934 the deficit will probably reach 15,000,000 pesetas (£800,000 at par)."

LONDON SALVAGE

CORPS

Big Changes To Be Made

(Special Air Mail Service)

London, Jan. 4. Big changes are to be made in the London Salvage Corps.

The number of men is to be reduced from 72 to 40 early this year, and two stations are to be closed.

In addition, Mr. W. J. Blyth, the former Superintendent, who retired five and a half years ago, is to be recalled. He will act under Mr. G. H. Whitman, who continues as Chief Officer.

Since the revelations during the fire conspiracy case there have been reports of secret investigations into the affairs of the Corps, which formerly had Captain S. E. Miles as Chief Officer.

It was announced last October that Mr. G. H. Whitman had been appointed Chief Officer. He had been acting Chief since November of last year, and for the past 22 years he has been secretary of the Corps.

How Corps is Maintained

The Salvage Corps is maintained by the tariff fire insurance companies. Its organization is in the hands of a committee containing representatives of these companies, presided over by Mr. Herbert Lewis, the general manager of the Commercial Union Assurance Company.

At the present time the Corps, which works in co-operation with the London Fire Brigade, with the object of restricting damage to property, has branch stations in Southwark Bridge Road, Commercial Road East, and at Islington, with headquarters in Watling Street.

Mr. W. J. Blyth was superintendent for 18 years until he retired in 1929, and altogether he served 33 years in the Corps. His father was also a superintendent of the Corps.

Mr. Blyth stated that he regarded it as a great compliment to be asked to return to the duties he relinquished five and a half years ago.

reach 15,000,000 pesetas (£800,000 at par).

Socialists and their allies have left scores of municipalities all over Spain in a lamentable financial situation. Wherever Socialism has had any handling of public funds the result has been ruinous. Expenditure steadily increased, and public services were just as steadily neglected. Rank inefficiency and waste characterized the Socialist rule, which was to have brought about a Utopia in 1934—the deficit will probably

CURRENT NEWS FROM CHINA

DECORATION IN THE HOME

Talk At Women's Club

From Our Special Correspondent

Canton, Jan. 20.

Interior decoration was the subject of an interesting talk at a meeting of the International Women's Club at the British Consulate General on Saturday by Mrs. Harley H. Tong, an interior decorator of note and artist formerly of Seattle, Wash., and Hong Kong.

The history of interior decoration was traced by Mrs. Tong from primitive Greece to Italy and then on to the styles of Louis XV and XVI. The speaker then discussed the great dignity in the Elizabethan, Georgian and Queen lacquer styles. China is known for her carved blackwood and lacquer work interiors.

Giving a descriptive account of the latest interior decoration style in the United States, Mrs. Tong said that the vogue is for white and off-white combined with one or two unusual colours. New York decorators, she said, are doing homes in white, eggshell, oyster white and greys, and chairs are painted white or off-white and upholstered in white corduroy, wool-like cottons, corded satin damask, cotton velour and even white patent leather.

"The new carpets come in shades of grey, platinum and egg-shell," the speaker went on. "Chromium, glass, marble, crystal and silver are introduced in the accessories. The average housewife cannot follow the constant changes in modern interior decoration but she can plan her home artistically and in good taste."

Decoration In Tropics

Bringing the subject nearer home, Mrs. Tong said that the home decoration problems in South China are dealing with the hot tropical weather, the seasonal humidity and the continual sunshine throughout the year. The home should be planned to be comfortable in the major part of the time which is about eight or nine months of very warm weather.

"To give your home a restful, cool atmosphere use such colours as blue, green, peach and other soft pastel shades," advised Mrs. Tong. "Every room should have one main colour throughout its drapes, cushions, carpets and accessories. Too many colours combined in one room are confusing and show a lack of forthrightness of the owner when purchasing the articles and assembling the room."

"Red and orange are not advisable to use in tropical climates as they are warm colours suggesting fire and heat. A room done in soft blue will appear larger, as blue recedes and gives a feeling of spaciousness and serenity."

She concluded her speech by saying that Chinese furniture or copies of them are very popular in England and America, as carved blackwood furniture goes beautifully with modern furnishings.

REDS CHECKED

Flight To Szechuan Held Up

Hankow, Jan. 11.

A telegraphic report from Kweichow indicates that the "Reds" under Chu Te and Mao Tse-tung continuing their flight north-westwards to southern Szechuan from northern Kweichow, have been checked by the units under General Hou Chih-tan, Vice-Commander of the 25th Army, at various strategic points.

With the arrival of the 2nd Army Corps of the Government Pursuit Forces under General Hsieh To, the morale of the Kweichow troops has been greatly strengthened.

To prevent the entry of the "Reds" into southern Szechuan, two trench-mortar brigades of Szechuan troops have been dispatched southwards to the Szechuan-Kweichow border by General Liu Hsiang, Commander-in-Chief of

CANTON AND NANKING

Efforts To Create Understanding

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, January 21.

A Nanking dispatch stated that Dr. Wang Chung Hui has effected some definite arrangement for co-operation between Canton and Nanking and will leave Shanghai to-morrow aboard the P. and O. liner Naldera for Hong Kong to see Mr. Hu Han Min.

Judge Wang will probably stay in Hong Kong for a few days before leaving for Europe to resume his duties as Judge at The Hague. He will also come to Canton to see his many friends and colleagues and to say goodbye. Judge Wang will then sail for Holland.

Shanghai press dispatches stated that the leaders of the National Government have expressed an earnest wish for an understanding with the South-west and have repeatedly urged Mr. Hu Han Min to proceed to Nanking. Nothing is mentioned about the terms of co-operation.

Nevertheless, Mr. Hu has indicated through a secretary of the South-west Political Council that he has no intention to go to Nanking at present nor will he go abroad in the near future. Officials here are anxious to await the arrival of Dr. Wang Chung Hui and wish to know what terms of co-operation he will bring to Canton.

The Szechuan Bandit-suppression Forces. Another brigade under Major-General Kuo Hsun-chi is stationed at Kiliang, in the extreme south of Szechuan, while the 5th Szechuan brigade under Lieut.-General Chen Hung-chien has also been mobilized to strengthen the border defence.—Kuo Min.

EXHIBITION IN CANTON

Native Products

(From Our Special Correspondent)

Canton, January 21.

The Native Products Exhibition at Shing Wong Temple in Wai Oi Road Central has turned out to be a success and done business amounting to $800,000, declared Mr. Chang Yuen Fung, Municipal Commissioner of Social Affairs in a weekly memorial service address this morning.

For fear that the government will impose a tax on their business merchants who are selling their goods in the exhibition reported that their business amounted to only $400,000. Mr. Chang said that the exhibition is to promote home industry and to provide employment to many people. In view of the success of this exhibition, more other establishments will be set up at Tat Hong Road, Sup Pat Po and Hong Kong suburb.

Mr. Chang said that regulations are necessary to supervise the sale of goods in the exhibition, as some mercenary merchants take advantage of the facilities in selling foreign goods.

The Bureau of Social Affairs, Commissioner Chang announced, will shortly make an investigation into the conditions of the big department stores and other concerns as a means to compile statistics on the conditions of the workers. The guilds concerned are asked to supply data, but the Bureau will send officials to verify the statements.

The probe will include the new industries such as rubber factories, match factories and dry battery factories. These factories are started as a result of the new tariff protecting home industries, Mr. Chang added.

BANK SUSPENDS PAYMENT

Assets Sufficient To Meet Demands

Amoy, Jan. 15.

The Amoy Commercial Bank, which suspended payment last Saturday, announced yesterday that the Bank will suspend business for 15 days as from the 14th inst. Its fate will be determined on the 30th inst. when an emergency meeting of shareholders will be held.

Deposits and other liabilities of the Bank totaled over $2 millions, according to the estimate of Mr. Liu Yun-sung, Assistant Manager. The assets, nevertheless, are sufficient to meet all obligations. Lawyers and accountants have been engaged to inspect the accounts, added Mr. Liu.

The suspension of the Amoy Commercial Bank and the closing earlier in the week of three leading native banks here have aroused great anxiety among the public. A run was simultaneously made on the branches here of the Bank of China, Bank of Communications, China and South Sea Bank, the Commercial Bank of China, and the National Industrial Bank of China yesterday. In view of the strong resources of these banks, and their readiness to meet all demands, it is believed that no serious consequences will ensue.

In order to avert a panic, the City Chamber of Commerce, at a meeting with the local authorities yesterday noon, resolved to petition the Bureau of Public Safety to issue a notice to the general public "not to be unduly alarmed as the banks are well able to meet payments."

RESCUE PARTY ENTOMBED

Accidents In South African Mine

Johannesburg.

Four Europeans and five natives have been killed in one of the most tragic mining accidents of the East Rand.

The accident occurred in the Angelo Deep, one of the oldest portions of East Rand Proprietary Mines, when a fall of rock entombed two natives.

The four Europeans Robert Percy Foxcroft, aged 46, John George Gladwin, aged 34, Henry Martin Lancaster, aged 40, all "shift bosses" and Daniel Richter, a 45-year-old miner, at once joined in the rescue party.

They were working under the most dangerous conditions, under the supervision of Mr. Rothman, the mine captain of the Angelo section, and after 40 minutes succeeded in extricating one body.

Tons Of Rock

They had reached a point from which it was possible to see the other buried native, when a pressure burst occurred, and the party was hurled beneath many tons of rock.

Mr. Rothman and Mr. Simpkins, the underground manager, miraculously escaped, being buried, and only suffered slight head injuries.

New rescue parties were formed in a desperate attempt to fight a path through the solid wall of rock that separated the rescuers from their entombed comrades.

For half-an-hour after the burst the rescuers could hear the voice of one of the men calling, but it was soon realised that the work of rescue was a hopeless task, owing to the huge mass of rock which lay in the way.

Finally, when it was realised that there was not the slightest hope of any of the men still being alive, the workers abandoned their task.

This accident is the first serious one underground on the East Rand Proprietary Mines since 1928, when 20 natives were buried alive.

All four Europeans were married men with families.

"ADVENTURE GIRL"

The King's Next Attraction

Now comes a new type of thrill-film, wherein highly imaginative adventures on the sea and in the jungle are given realism through the camera record, with Joan Lowell, authoress and seeker of adventure, encountering terrific storms while aboard a 43-foot schooner, and hunting for treasure in the jungles of Central America. Joan Lowell in "Adventure Girl," which comes to the King's Theatre on Wednesday, depicts the incredible happenings on an expedition to the Spanish Main. Setting sail in a small craft, Joan Lowell was accompanied only by her 76-year-old sea-dog father, Captain Nicholas Wagner, and two sailors, Otto Siegler and Bill Sawyer, ex-Marines and soldiers of fortune. Captain Apple-Jack, a canine mascot, rounded out the crew. In the film the much-publicized daughter of Neptune, whose book "The Cradle of the Deep" engendered a world-wide controversy is not long in finding the thrills she sought for. Her boat, "Black Hawk," all but sinks in a terrific storm off Cape Hatteras, during the course of which Joan had to lash her veteran-skipper father to the wheel. A hurricane in the Caribbean brings vivid new dangers to the "title party," and this is followed by a calm, signals for help to passing ships going unheeded, with the consequence that the adventurers suffer for days from thirst. Joan and one of the sailors row many miles to shore and get water. Then, with the rigging and hull of the "Black Hawk" repaired with salvage from other wrecked ships, the party again sets sail for Central America, their objective ruins where, in the vastness of a forbidden jungle, is a temple. Here, buried beneath an idol, Joan hopes to find a great emerald, "so big and green that men die looking at its beauty." With the

The quickest-acting STOMACH REMEDY used by Doctors

Amazing evidence of the remarkable speed with which indigestion and stomach pains can be stopped has been revealed by medical experiments and X-ray photographs of actual cases. These prove the ingredients of "Bisurated" Magnesia to be the quickest-acting and most effective known to medical science. Within 5 minutes a teaspoonful of "Bisurated" Magnesia in a little water produces complete relief in cases where numerous other remedies had failed entirely.

'BISURATED' Magnesia

quickest stomach relier known

A NOTED ENGLISH DOCTOR SAYS:

"I find that 'Bisurated' Magnesia taken after my meals is the only thing that keeps me free from pain and discomfort, and I take it regularly. I often prescribe it for my patients and have had very good results."
H.C. — MA. M.R.C.S. (L.R.C.P.)

Another Doctor Says: "Bisurated" Magnesia gives excellent results and is the ideal remedy for stomach pains and acidity. It is particularly recommended for Dyspepsia, Gastritis, Stomach Pains, Flatulence, and even Stomach Ulcers."

STRAITS SHARE QUOTATIONS

Messrs. H. B. Joseph & Co. have received the following market report from Singapore and share quotations dated January 14th 1935—Prices in Straits Currency.
Tin.—Market much healthier, consumption in America and Europe has taken a sudden upturn and we are expecting to see a very big rise in tin shares this year. On the other hand they give a much higher return and we understand the meeting of the International Tin Committee has been fixed for February 12th when new and increased tin quotas will be announced.
Lumber.—Lumber are now in the tin share market buying popular prices at slowly advancing prices.
Rubber.—We think prices to-day of rubber shares discounts the future to a large extent. A return of 5% is the highest one can expect for the present.

SHANGHAI MARKET COMMENT

January 16. There was more activity noticeable on the Shanghai Stock Exchange last Tuesday, especially in debentures. The leading lines that changed hands were Shanghai Telephone 8%, Shanghai Power 5 1/2%, Shanghai Waterworks 6%, Shanghai Telephone 8%, Shanghai Power 5 1/2%. The general market remained quiet and steady. In the rubber section owing to better advices from London, New York and Singapore, there were signs of returning confidence and all shares were quickly absorbed. On the next day interest was again chiefly centred in the preference and debenture markets. Shanghai Waterworks and Shanghai Power leading the list. The only interesting feature of Thursday's market was the interest shown for rubber shares and despite the fact that the turnover was not large, there was an improved undertone. Continued demand was displayed for Shanghai Power 6% preference shares at rates unchanged from the previous day.
